

Outdoor Education:

Children of the digital age have become increasingly alienated from the natural world, with disastrous implications, not only for their physical fitness, but also for their long-term mental and spiritual health.

Natural Drainage Solutions:

Storm water infrastructure is a necessary component of urban environments, but creative solutions can respect natural settings and improve water quality.

Council Rings:

Council rings date back to the time of the Native Americans, they are a very American element in the landscape. When a group of people enter, they are equally spread throughout the circle and there is no designated head of the table. These features are traditionally made of stone.

Rustic Trails:

Trails with natural surfaces preserve infiltration rates and complement natural settings.
